20th Sunday in Ordinary Time

“Try to understand” (Ephesians 5:17). These words from today’s Second Reading summarize the readings and prayers for this Twentieth Sunday in Ordinary Time.

FIRST READING: The readings today are all about understanding. In the wonderfully poetic First Reading from Proverbs, God’s wisdom is personified as a wealthy woman, who has built a grand house and spread a magnificent feast inside. She sends out her “maidens” (Proverbs 9:3) to invite the people in, and she herself goes to the heights and calls out to the whole city. She calls out to the whole city. She calls those who are “simple” (9:4) to come and taste her food and drink her wine. To share in this banquet is to “advance in the way of understanding” (9:6).

RESPONSORIAL PSLAM 34 also extends an invitation to “taste and see” (34:9) the Lord’s goodness.

SECOND READING: THE Ephesians are warned not to rest on their laurels—they have faith, but they need to live that faith worthily. They must continually “try to understand what is the will of the Lord” (Ephesians 5:17). They are to pass their days not in drunkenness, but in joyful gatherings in which they sing of God’s goodness. In community, they will find what they need to nourish their faith and make it grow.

GOSPEL: We delve deeper and deeper in the Eucharistic mystery. “How can this man give us his flesh to eat?” the people ask (John 6:52). The word flesh scares them. Spirit is spirit, and flesh is flesh; Jesus seems to be mixing up the two. Jesus does not back down. Instead, he insistently repeats the words flesh and blood, eat and drink (6:54–56). This kind of eating and drinking leads to spiritual results. The one who eats this bread has “life” (6:53), then “eternal life,” (6:54). They will share in the resurrection on the “last day” (6:54—an abiding life in Jesus himself, a life which comes from the Father). Like Wisdom in the first reading today, Jesus issues an invitation to a banquet. We are free to accept or refuse.
